1. Josef Fleischmann, member of the Communist Employees' Council of the Siemens-Schuckert firm, Engerthstrasse, Vienna II, was ordered by Alois Peter, Secretary of the Vienna Municipal Board of the Communist Party of Austria, to try to manufacture radio equipment with the aid of the most reliable among his comrades.
2. The radio equipment is said to be destined for the adversary section of the Communist Party of Austria. Rumors in the Central Committee are that each provincial board and intelligence office of the Communist Party of Austria will be furnished with such a transmitting and receiving set so important information can quickly be transmitted to the adversary section in the Central Committee.
3. Dr. Duermayer, at one of the last conferences of the adversary section, said that the communication system of the party will be modernized.
